

The screenshot shows the Jane's Defence Weekly website interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for 'public area', 'client area', 'research tools', 'client services', 'products', and 'careers'. A banner for ITT (Intelligence and Insight) is visible, along with a user login status 'You are logged in'. The main content area is titled 'Your first line of defence' and features a cover story: 'Gates accepts senior USAF resignations'. Below this, several news items are listed, with the article 'Manufacturer hopes to fly half-scale 'delivery truck' UAV in 2009' circled in red. The article text states: 'US private venture company Frontline Aerospace plans to fly a half-scale version of a new logistics and utility vertical take-off and landing (VTOL) unmanned aerial... 13-Jun-2008'. Other articles include 'Hatehof to unveil protected vehicles' and 'UK parliament censures privatisation of QinetiQ'. The right sidebar contains advertisements for IAI (Israel Aerospace Industries) and NEPA (National Electronic Publishers Association).

<http://jdw.janes.com/public/jdw/index.shtml>

Manufacturer hopes to fly half-scale 'delivery truck' UAV in 2009

US private venture company Frontline Aerospace plans to fly a half-scale version of a new logistics and utility vertical take-off and landing (VTOL) unmanned aerial...
13-Jun-2008